The 2005 International Builders' Show To Be Held in Orlando January 13-16, 2005

The International Builders' Show is sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders, the largest building association in the United States, serving more than 211,000 members.

Join more than 100,000 construction industry professionals at the 2005 International Builders' Show. The construction industry's largest new-product showcase attracts professionals from around the globe. International visitors travel to the show from nearly 100 countries.

The International Builders' Show showcases more than 1,600 of America's foremost suppliers of building materials, tools, services and technologies. Explore over 74,000 net square meters of exhibits.

The show's tecHOMEExpo™ will be back again with the latest generation of products, services, and solutions in automated home management, communication systems, computing, and more. And tecHOMEExpo's high-tech focus extends to special workshops held throughout the International Builders' Show.

The International Commercial Construction Exposition (ICCON) is also part of the show. Find everything you need for light commercial construction. Attendees engaged in commercial construction activities will see a wide display of commercial products and services in exhibitor booths. Check the Official Exhibit Guide for exhibitors offering both residential and commercial products and services in their booths.

The International Builders' Show is one of a select few U.S. trade shows to be chosen by the U.S. Department of Commerce to participate in the International Buyer Program. U.S. Embassies, Consulates, and Commercial Centers worldwide will promote the International Builders' Show, help organize delegations, and encourage international buyers, agents, and distributors to attend. International visitors who attend through this program will receive a discount on their registration fee. For more information, please contact the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate in your country.
